

On The Edge 2019 (the AGM edition)

Editor's Notes

Hi All.

Here is the 2019 On the Edge, I had hoped to publish a proper glossy magazine newsletter full of stories and photos of members work but sadly, despite repeated requests for submissions, there was not enough content to justify the printing expense – so an emailed PDF is the result. I'm still keen to make the magazine; I just need more stuff to put in it. If you would like to submit content or photos (I'm sure there's some amazing shots from Sharp by Coop out there now) email to editor@akg.org.au

This mini-newsletter is to satisfy our constitutional obligation to report to the membership the Minutes of the AGM held in May along with the Guild Financial Statement. I apologise for the delay in distributing these out to the membership but it was my intention to include them in the magazine but since I won't be publishing that soon I thought I'd put this out there.

Also I've included a note from our new Vice-President Andrew Blomfield regarding his idea to recognise higher standards for makers within the Guild. It's widely known that the peer-awarded MS stamp from the American Bladesmith Society is a powerful marketing tool that can be used to increase the value of your knives. Andrew would like to investigate something similar for the Guild.

Keep grinding everyone and I'll see a few of you at Knife Camp 2019.

Christian Mathieson

President's Notes.

The membership of the Guild is at an all time high. It is great to see new members joining and presenting their knives for assessment and review. This is a big step in improving the quality of your work. The State rep's feedback is invaluable to pick up those little things we miss in our craft. I encourage all those probationary members to start planning your blades for your full member assessment. Spend some time thinking about the project, rather than just grabbing any three knives sitting around. Stretch yourself in what you present, it will improve the quality of your overall making. Remember as Guild member other members are happy to help, advise and mentor you as you go on your knifemaking journey.

Speaking of improving, it is not too late to come to Knife Camp, there are still a few spots available. It is not just for beginner makers or probationary members; all members of the Guild could benefit from coming along. It's a great opportunity to share ideas, skills, re-fire your enthusiasm for knifemaking, and strengthen friendships. We would like to use it this year to have deeper discussions on ideas to enhance the Guild, like Andrew's proposal. Contact Christian if you want to come along.

Dues

A gentle reminder that membership fees are due by the end of the year. They will need to be paid to remain a financial member. Bruce will be sending out an email reminder in December.

Opportunities

The treasurer position is currently vacant. In the short term the committee will manage the responsibilities. We will need to vote in a new Treasurer at the next AGM. If anyone is interested, please contact your state rep or another committee member to discuss.

In May my term of President is up. After four years as President and several years before that as State rep, I won't be seeking re-election. It's time to give someone else a go, some new blood. Have a think if you would like to contribute. Or if you know someone in the Guild who would make a good President, encourage them to run for it.

Stay safe over the summer, especially those in bushfire prone areas.

Karim

Vice President's Notes

I have been asked by the Guild to head up a sub-committee to look into the Guild adopting standard levels to which members can aspire if they wish.

Most Guilds have levels. These are usually apprentice, journeyman and master.

The Australian Guild recently introduced testing for probationary members to become full members. This test was introduced so that new members could present their work to State reps who are only too willing to help with any problems they are having. Some of the people I approached when I joined the Guild have since become my mentors and have continued to help me with techniques and sort out problems.

My job as I see it is two fold, to form a sub-committee and to listen to and discuss suggestions from members as to the system they would like.

I have already had input from a few members with ideas;

1. That we follow the American system (Journeyman Smith and Master Smith)

The advantage of this system is that the criteria are fully developed. The disadvantages are its narrow focus (ie. Forged blades) and the AKG has very few judges.

2. That we introduce a two part system based on skill and service. The skill part could be covered by winning trophies at knife shows. The service part could be covered by service to the guild through committee or other work in management or shows.

For example:

Guildsman level 3, this could be just skills based.

Guildsman level 2, this could be skill and service based.

Guildsman level 1, this could be skill and service based, but higher standard than level 2 and maybe the presentation of an exemplary knife that photographs of which can be used in the promotion of the Guild.

3. That we introduce a system of Journeyman Knife Maker and Master Knife Maker based on skill, with criteria to be decided by the AKG.

I would like to hear from anyone who would like to serve on the sub-committee, and from members who have any more suggestions, or ideas about the suggestions presented above. It is important that we get this right. We don't want to divide knife making into competing groups. For example; fixed blade versus folders, hunters versus kitchen knives, stock removal versus forging, etc.

The basic principles of knife making apply to all knives. These principles are, fit for purpose, design, craftsmanship, skill, imagination and fit and finish.

I would like for members who wish to advance their skills to have structures in place that show the public, knife buyers and collectors that they are producing superior knives.

Any help that you can give me will be greatly appreciated. Contact me at
